U. S. Carriers, Marines Sent To Laos Area

WASHINGTON, May 12. — (A.P.) — President Kennedy sent a carrier task force, with a battalion of marines aboard, steaming toward Southeast Asia today. He conferred here with his chief military and diplomatic advisers on further moves to deal with the growing crisis in Laos.

The conference included Secretary of State Rusk, Secretary of Defense McNamara and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer.

Mr. Kennedy reportedly gave the order yesterday for the carrier task force to get into position for further action, and officials said today that the force had sailed. It is made up of elements of the Seventh Fleet. Substantial units of the fleet are based at Subic Bay in the Philippines.

Informants said a battle group might be sent ashore in Thailand, if that United States ally wanted reinforcements against the dangers of Communist troops' moving over the border in pursuit of retreating Laotian-government forces.

In official quarters here there was still talk of possible direct United States military intervention in Laos.

The rapid collapse of resistance by the pro-Western government troops in the northwestern part of the country indicated that American forces would have little base on which to build a new position.

The Communist troops now hold a little more than two thirds of Laos by official American estimate.

Last Northwest Stronghold Falls

VIENTIANE, Laos, May 12.—(U.P.I.)—The Laotian field commander and 2,000 of his troops have fled into Thailand after abandoning Ban Houei Sai to Communist forces, United States military advisers said today.

A United States Army captain and six enlisted men, assigned as advisers to the Laotian forces, crossed into Thailand with the retreating troops.

The loss of Ban Houei Sai marked the complete collapse of the royal army in Northwestern Laos.

British Envoy, Russian Confer

MOSCOW, May 12.—(A.P.)—British Ambassador Sir Frank Roberts today called on Vasily Kuznetsov, first deputy foreign minister, to discuss Laos. Both sides declined to comment on what was said.

Damage Widespread As Storm Batters Chicago and Suburbs

CHICAGO, May 12.—(U.P.I.)—A storm which reached tornado proportions in some areas swept Chicago and its suburbs today, collapsing a roof on two sleeping sisters and smashing homes, trees and power lines.

The high winds caved in the roof of a slum-area apartment building on the South Side and showered bricks and mortar on Caroline, 4, and Patricia Ingram, 3. Neighbors dug through the debris to free the girls and they were hospitalized, apparently not seriously injured.

There were no fatalities reported in Chicago, but a fisherman was missing and feared lost off Belmont Harbor on the North Side. The front wall and part of the roof of another South Side apartment house caved in, but the occupants were not injured.

Homes were damaged, lightning-sparked fires flared, trees and power lines were bowled over and windows were shattered as the storm swept the city.

THE SKIES over Lake Michigan turned black as the storm hit shortly before 9 a. m. Warnings of a seiche—a tidal-like wave caused by atmospheric pressure—were issued for the Chicago shoreline.

In suburban Des Plaines, the storm had the earmarks of a tornado. Plate-glass windows were sucked out into the street, instead of blown inward. Lightning touched off two fires in the suburb, police reported 50 "hot wire" alarms, and large sections of the town were without electrical power.

Three roofs were torn from a group of townhouses in suburban Skokie, doors were torn from buildings at Elk Grove Village, and two partly constructed homes were blown over on Mount Prospect.

IN CHICAGO, the worst damage appeared to be on the Northwest Side and on the Southeast Side, where the roof collapse occurred. The Ingram children were sleeping on the third floor of the brick building.

Twelve persons here were injured by flying glass when three 8-by-10-foot windows crashed at a Sears, Roebuck store.

SWEDISH CALM:

Diver, Trapped for Hours, Directs Rescue by Phone

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 12.—(U.P.I.)—A Swedish diver who directed his own rescue when a 3,000-pound rock trapped him 80 feet underwater was reported recovering in a hospital today.

Ove Serner, 37, was trying to blast out a 40-ton rock yesterday when a large piece chipped loose and trapped his arm against the sea floor.

Unable to move, Serner called two other divers, Sigvard Eriksson and Helmer Lindberg, who went down after him.

In the underwater darkness, Serner directed his rescuers through his diver's telephone while they worked for an hour, placing wires under the rock so it could be lifted by a crane from a barge above.

By the time Serner was freed, he had been underwater for two and a half hours. He was put into a decompression chamber to combat an attack of the bends—an often-fatal disability caused by the accumulation of air bubbles which form in the blood during a too-rapid ascent from under water.

Man Killed as Car Rams Truck Near Fall City

FRONT SEAT OF AUTOMOBILE WHERE SALESMAN MET DEATH

Wayne Emil Torvinen, 54, of Fall City, a truck salesman, was injured fatally when an automobile ramed an empty cattle truck three miles north of Fall City in the Fall City-Carnation Highway about 11:20 o'clock last night. State Patrolman Donald Hampton reported that Torvinen was a passenger in an automobile driven by John K. Williams, 34, of 11031 Woodville Drive, Bothell.

Hampton said the car struck the truck driven by Edgar J. Kaelin, 32, of Puyallup, on a slight curve. Williams was admitted to Nelems Hospital, Snoqualmie, with a dislocated hip, a pelvic fracture, a head injury and a chest injury. Kaelin suffered head bruises. Hampton said the southbound truck had pulled out of a driveway. The car was demolished.

Coroner Leo M. Sowers reported that Torvinen is survived by a brother, Matt Torvinen, of Everett, and a sister in Chicago. He had been staying at the Fall City Hotel. Torvinen's death raised the 1962 King County traffic toll to 46. Twenty-one deaths have been in the county and 25 inside Seattle. The toll at this time last year was 49 — 26 in the county and 23 inside Seattle.

A burglar reached through a window in the home of George Spiro, 120 31st Av. S., last midnight and took a purse containing a $1,000 string of pearls and a pearl pin valued at $300. Mrs. Spiro told police she saw the burglar descend a ladder under the window. She said she started to chase the man and he turned a garden hose on her. The purse belonged to Ilse Albert of Montreal, Canada, a visitor at the Spiro home. She said the pearls were a foot-long matched string. Mrs. Boehme had poison symptoms, pathologist testifies. Fair Again Closes 'Girls Of Galaxy'

The Seattle World's Fair yesterday ordered the "Girls of the Galaxy" show on Show Street to close tomorrow night. "It fails to live up to the standards of the World's Fair," Ewen C. Dingwall, the fair's general manager said today.

THE SHOW — closed once before by the fair management and the city Censor Board — reopened Tuesday night over the fair's objections.

"We specifically asked them not to open until the show had been strengthened," Dingwall said. "The show will not open again unless its management comes back with a completely new and acceptable format."

The fair will have no trouble filling the space if the Galaxy show is closed permanently, George K. Whitney, Century 21's director of amusements and concessions, said.

NO "MORAL ISSUE" is involved, Dingwall stressed. "It is a matter of upgrading," Dingwall said.

"We think it is a privilege for people to be connected with the world's fair—and they have an obligation to present high quality."

Dingwall also disclosed today that he has ordered the management of the "Peep Backstage" show to improve its presentation immediately or face closure. A complete revision of that show is under way. (Details, Page A.)

Ex-Employe's Motive Sought

A baby boy, one of twins born at 9 o'clock last night, was stabbed in the chest with a butcher knife at 5:30 o'clock this morning in the nursery at Doctors Hospital.

The assailant was a former nurse at the hospital, Mrs. Jean McKean, 35. A nurse, Mrs. Jean McKean, 39, of 2521 Second Av. W., was cut on the head, apparently superficially, in subduing Mrs. Simons.

THE BABY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Perrault of 22832 17th Av. S., was in satisfactory condition. X-ray examinations were scheduled to determine the extent of the wound in the upper center of the infant's chest.

"The baby is breathing beautifully and his color is good," a physician said.

The baby and his twin brother were in separate isolettes, as is customary in multiple births.

POLICE were unable to establish a motive for the attack.

Mrs. Adeline Moody, director of nurses at the hospital, said Mrs. Simons was an excellent nurse during her service at Doctors Hospital between July, 1959, and October, 1961.

Mrs. Simons, who has three children, one of them born in Doctors Hospital during her term of employment, left Doctors to go to California.

Until she appeared in the hospital this morning, associates assumed she was in California.

HOSPITAL authorities said Mrs. Simons apparently entered the hospital with the early-morning nursing and kitchen crews, at a time when she could easily go unnoticed among incoming employees.

Mrs. Simons apparently was seen by no one as she made her way to the second-floor nursery.

Mrs. McKean, night supervisor of the hospital, first spotted Mrs. Simons in the glass-walled isolation room, the knife in her hand and apparently preparing for a further assault on the infant.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. McKean screamed "at the top of her lungs," and ran into the room to grapple with Mrs. Simons.

"THAT SCREAM" apparently startled Mrs. Simons and prevented her from doing anything else until Mrs. McKean grabbed her," a hospital associate said.

"Nobody ever fought like that Mrs. McKean. Those that were there said it was the bravest thing they'd ever seen."

Mrs. McKean was cut on the top of the head in the struggle, during which the knife blade was broken off at the handle.

"When I looked through the glass and saw her standing there it was terrifying," Mrs. McKean said later at her home. "All I could think of was the baby. I screamed for the floor nurse at the top of my lungs."

"I'M NOT SURE just what happened after that. I know it was an awful struggle. Somehow the blade got broken off the handle before she hit me on the head with it."

"Then a nurse and an orderly came to help me. Even with them it was a terrible struggle. The door swings into the nursery and I was having an awful time trying to drag her out — until they came to help me."

Asked if she was frightened when she realized she had to disarm the woman, Mrs. McKean said: "That's a strange thing. I wasn't afraid at all for myself — just for the baby."

Hospital authorities said apparently no one saw Mrs. Simons until Mrs. McKean spotted her in the nursery.

"If any one of the nursing staff had seen her, they probably would have greeted her as an old associate returning for a visit," Mrs. Moody said.

MRS. MOODY said there was nothing in Mrs. Simons's record to indicate the slightest abnormality.

Nurses normally tend babies in isolettes through a porthole in the side. The plastic top, however, is easily removable.

Mrs. Simons had done that in the case of the Perrault baby.

Mrs. Simons was taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Linn Wicks, also a volunteer fireman, administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to the Hill child, but a physician pronounced the baby dead.
